

Webinar „Migration, health & economics: mapping the field”

April 28, 2022, 13:00 – 15:30 CET

Time	Contents	Presenters
13:00-13:20	Welcome & Introduction	N. Gottlieb (Bielefeld University)
13:20-14:20	Presentations <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) Migrants as an economic resource 2) Assembling forced migrant mental health services in England 3) Narratives, storytelling, and the moral economy of care. Experiences of migrant women in informal older adults’ caregiving in Italy 4) Costs and benefits of physician migration: comparing U.S. and Swedish models 	S. Combes (Rennes University) P. Mladovsky (London School of Economics and Political Science) E. Szocs & K. Nasser Aldeen (Independent Global Health Consultants) S. Hedlund (Boston University)
14:20-14:30	Break incl. opportunity to add comments & thoughts to a shared online document
14:30-14:50	Pitch presentations <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 5) Equitable substance use treatment for migrants, refugees and ethnic minorities: an emerging research domain 6) "Refugees for Care"— an ethnography of a care-training-program for refugees in Germany 7) Methodological challenges and solutions on migration, health and economics 8) Migrant women in the UK’s hostile environment – a human rights analysis 9) The consequences of qualification recognition. Linking economic integration policies, educational mismatch and mental health of first-generation immigrants in Germany 	C. de Kock (Ghent University) M. Schmidt (Goethe University Frankfurt a.M.) D. Katongo Chola (University of Pretoria/Mulungushi University) N. Sedacca (Exeter University) K. Rickmeyer & M. Hogrefe (Bielefeld University)

	10) Politics and economics, health and migration: what do/don't we know about the interactions?	E. Daramoi Oketta (IRC Uganda)
	11) Heterogeneity of migration and health in China: A scoping review and empirical analysis using Latent Class Analysis	W. Chen & L. Jordan (University of Hongkong)
14:50-15:00	Break
15:00-15:30	Discussion, outlook & next steps	A. Krasnik, K. Bozorgmehr & U. Trummer

For registration or questions, please send an email to Nora Gottlieb: nora.gottlieb@uni-bielefeld.de